

Hold you know

Vampire weekend

I know the reason why you think you gotta leave
Promises of future glory don't make a case for me
I did my best and all the rest is hidden by the clouds
I can't carry you forever, but I can hold you now

Leaving on your wedding day
All calm and dressed in white
All I'll keep's the memory of one last crooked night
The pews are getting filled up
The organ's playing loud
I can't carry you forever, but I can hold you now

I know the reason why you think I ought to stay
Funny how you're telling me on my wedding day
Crying in those rumpled sheets
Like someone's 'bout to die
You just watch your mouth when talking 'bout the father of the bride

Why's your heart grown heavy, boy, when things were feeling light?
Turning this June morning into some dark judgment night
This ain't the end of nothing much, it's just another round
I can't carry you forever, but I can hold you now
